The buildings stand practically completed and equip the institution for the care of 96 patients. With land values included the plant represents an approximate expenditure of $100.000. The buildings are located on a tract of land 31 acres in extent and bordering on the New London turnpike, formerly known as the Post farm, which was purchased by the state commission after a variety of sites had been looked over. Separated from this central group are the two shacks, that for men to the west and that for women to the east of the main building. Each shack will take care of 24 patients of the incipient class.
